

INDEX

- American Life Project, 16–17
- Anxiety, 50–51
- Atlantic, The* (Eveleth), 11–12
- Autoethnography, 22–23
- Bodies, 4–5, 11, 40
- Body project, 65–67
- Calorie counting, 81
- Care, 61
- Caring, 61
  - future research, 70–71
- Chronic fatigue syndrome (CFS), 68
- Chronic illness, 63–64
- Chronic pain, 15–16
- Commercial tensions, 6–12
- Competitive leaderboards, 11–12
- Consumerism, 66–67
- Consumption, 73
- COVID-19
  - pandemic, 20, 29–30, 52
  - risk, 48–49
- “Data farming” approach, 54
- Deductive analysis, 27–28
- Digital food preparation and consumption, 74–78
- Eating healthism, 81–84
- Evocative narratives, 22–23
- Experimentation, 91–93
- Feminine masquerade, 38–39
- Fitspiration, 13–14
- Food
  - consumption, 74
  - rituals, 74
  - trackers, 84
- Food tracking. See also Household tracking, 76–78
  - future research, 84–85
  - households’ food tracking practices, 78
  - performative, 78–81
- Generations, 87
- Global health
  - and crises from cure to prevention, 1–6
  - initiative, 103–104
  - partnership, 103–104
  - program, 103–104
- Goal achievement, 10–11
- Goal-tracking, 40
- Health, 1, 4–5
  - data tracking, 34
  - image-narratives, 33
  - images, 39–42
  - lived experience, 16
  - perceived reality, 13–14
  - providers, 106
  - sociologists, 11
  - sustainability, 107–108
  - trackers, 6–7
  - visualising, 34–38
- Health expertise, 45
  - future research, 56–57
  - social construction, 52–56
  - surface view of health, 46–52
- Hopes About Life in 2025*, 6–7
- Household tracking. See also Self-tracking, 19
  - analytical approach, 28

- aspects, 24
- data analysis, 27–31
- in pandemic, 21–23
- participants and households, 23, 25–27
- as site of changing health practices, 104–106
- study, 19–21
- Households, 74–75, 82–83, 87
  - food tracking practices, 78
  - health lifestyle, 102–104
- Illness work, 61–63
- Image-narrative, 34, 38
- Inductive analysis, 27–28
- Intergenerational narratives with tracking
  - experimentation, 91–93
  - future research, 98–99
  - negotiation, 88–91
  - surveillance, 93–98
- Joint Academic, 6–7
- Lived experience of health, 16
- ‘Manpo-kei’, 7
- Meal preparation, 81
- Meal tracking practices, 78–79
- Mealtime etiquette, 74
- Mobile health technologies, 87–88
- Moral tracking, 81–84
- Myalgic encephalomyelitis (ME), 68
- Negotiation, 88–91
- Performative food tracking, 78–81
- Personalised consumer health messages, 106
- Pets, self-tracking with, 109–111
- Pew Internet, 16–17
- Privacy International, 5
- Quantified Self movement (QS movement), 6, 9, 12
- Redemption, 68
- ‘Safe bubbles’ of contact, 56
- Self-surveillance, 93–94
  - practices, 61–62
- Self-tracking, 34, 39, 106
  - commercial tensions and quantified self, 6–12
  - construction of health, 1, 12, 16
  - data, 45
  - global health and crises from cure to prevention, 1–6
  - of older adults, 87–88
  - with pets, 109–111
  - prospect, 34
  - questions, 16–18
- Sick role, 62–63
- Smartphone apps, 13–14
- Social constructivism, 13
- Social media, 34, 36, 38
  - content, 13–14
  - studies, 39–40
- Social support, 106
- Strava, 34
- Surveillance, 93–98
  - Esme, 94–95
  - Mallory, 96–98
  - William, 95–96
- Sybile, 36–38
- Trackers, 10–11, 47–48
- Tracking, 48–49, 65, 101
  - of chronic illness, 62–65
  - data, 61–62
  - future research, 70–71
  - projects, 65–70
- Transformations with self-tracking findings, 106–108
  - household health lifestyle, 102–104
  - household tracking as site of changing health practices, 104–106
- Trust, 3–4, 46

User empowerment, 106

Visualisation, 77

Visualising tracking, 33
    authentically fit, 38–39

future research, 42–43

health images, 39–42

visualising health, 34–38

Yamasa Tokei Keiki Co., Ltd, 7